OLYMPICS MEANING FOR THE WORLD AND THEIR FUTURE

Annotation: The article is devoted to the importance of value of the Olympics in the future. The purpose of the project is learn how Olympics appeared and developed, understand what makes them attractive and spectacular, discover real benefits of hosting the Olympic Games.

Key words: hosting Olympic Games, Olympics issues.

This project is about probably the best event ever created for mankind. I mean Olympic Games. They allow all countries and people to participate and show their greatness and skills. It is an amazing event to watch, it is powerful and meaningful. In the spirit of the Olympics, the most important thing is to take part fairly, and to do one's best. This is what the Olympic Games are really about.
The Olympic Games give us the chance to celebrate our shared humanity, and the object of the competitors should be to express this humanity by performing fairly and honestly to the best of their natural ability. The Olympic spirit can be seen in all those who compete in the Games, not just in those who win the medals. This spirit can be seen in athletes from poorer parts of the world, who have little chance to develop their skills or gain experience, but who do the best they can with limited resources, and who represent their country with pride and dignity.

Fortunately, the biggest sporting event on the planet is coming to Pyeongchang. The 2018 winter Olympic Games will be the next worldwide summer sports event to be held in Pyeongchang, in South Korea. Olympic Games are very important for the South Korea economy and politics, as well as for overall country image.

The Olympics bring great tradition to a host country, city and as for the world. The Olympics bring a sense of honour in countries which inspires the youth to go out and participate in sports and grow mentally and physically with the hope of someday competing in the Olympics. The greatest thing that could happen to a village, a town or a city is to host the Olympic Games. That is what the benefit is, making people better through sports and inspiration.

But, Will it continue forever? How long will the Olympic Games include this goal and try to stay relevant and actual?

Hosting the Olympic Games can bring a lot of benefits for country [1]. These benefits can be divided into either long term or short-term ones.

Long-term benefits of hosting the Olympics fall in three major categories. The first is the creation of infrastructure that reaches worldwide standards.
The second category is the benefit of receiving international attention through media coverage. The last long-term benefit is related to the community; there will be formation of educational and youth programs, there will also be formation of jobs for a number of individuals. Some local volunteer programs will also be formed. Thereafter, there will be formation of community development programs.

The Olympics are also quite instrumental in the process of creating national unity. Sporting activities have always been seen as contributory factors to national cohesion.

Also, Olympic Games are a method of stopping wars. A truce was announced before and during each of the Olympic festivals, to allow visitors to travel safely to Olympia.

Thinking about the future of the Olympics, the most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part. But because of the increasing pressures, like cheating, drug abuse, corruption and bribery, the people will eventually fail in attempt to uphold the great Olympic Spirit.

Drugs in sport are one of the most important issues. The using of performance enhancing drugs is usually considered as the deliberate and an unfair way used by athletes to achieve their goal, therefore it is just like cheating [2].

Another most common issue in the Olympics nowadays is corruption and bribery [3]. It has been a scandal for years and it is the hardest one to be stop.

There is one more reason. The Olympic motto expresses the aspirations of the Olympic Games to achieve better results. But what does the word “better” mean? As the English proverb says, “A man can do no more than he can.” Unfortunately, we must agree that it is true. It is impossible for the people to be able to make more than their opportunities. So, the question “what is the meaning of Olympics, if new records is not broken” arises. Does the end of the Olympic Games exist? In history there is no subjunctive mood and there are no ifs. Unfortunately, we cannot look into the future. Probably, new kinds of sports will be created, which people are not very good at yet.

These issues can become the greatest threats to Olympics and if it keeps on going, the Modern Olympics will die because of the same reason, just like the Ancient Olympics.

Finally, sport is the greatest achievement for all mankind. Due to sport, many people were able to cope with various diseases, raise a healthy mind and become more attractive. No other activity affects so many aspects of a person, both emotional and physical.

Achieving success in sports, in the arts, athletes think about the welfare of their native city. They reach the prosperity of their country through personal achievements. Perhaps that is why the Olympic Games today remain an important event not only in the life of athletes, but also for the countries that they represent.
